A Letter from the Editors

The job of yearbook editors was not something we had earned at the time, it was something handed to us because no one else wanted the hard work that the job entailed. Despite our lack of knowledge and experience, we took on the daunting workload with the utmost pride and determination. We took the responsibility extremely seriously. Documenting memories and experiences that were representative of the entire student body was not a task we took lightly. We wanted to show the changes occurring at the Academy while also showing that the traditions and values of Mass Maritime are unwavering. One of the most unique aspects of our school is the Regiment and the sense of camaraderie that we all share. All of us first felt this during Orientation when we learned the age-old phrase, "Shipmates before brothers, brothers before others." However, moving through years at the Academy, we begin to realize that the friends that we make here and the experiences we share are irreplaceable. Through the good and bad times, our hope is that we have captured some of these moments as well as the spirit that pulses through each and every cadet here.

We would like to thank our yearbook staff, Chris Spelman (our Jostens Yearbook Representative) and Lieutenant Commander Pinero. Without your dedication and support, this book wouldn't have been possible. Another large thank you to Sean Hurley Del-Vecchio who was essential as an SGA liaison. Finally, we would like to thank anyone who sent us photos! The cadets are truly what make this book so great!

Farewell to the Class of 2015

Congratulations!

I am very proud of you.

Navigating your way through the Academy is neither for the faint of heart nor for those who are easily scared off by hard work and discipline. As a member of the Class of 2015, you have certainly earned the right to brag about your accomplishments and trumpet the successful completion of one of the most arduous college experiences in America. Too often in our culture, college is a four year state of suspended adolescence where the studies are disconnected from the reality outside those famed ivy covered walls that serve to insulate the undergraduate from the real world they will enter after graduation. Here, however, you are constantly exposed to the world of work in the professions that we support. Through commercial shipping experiences, co-ops and internships, you are frequently immersed in duties that are relevant to your studies... and to your future. Through the discipline learned here, you have acquired the skills of self-control, teamwork and of leadership. Directly as a result of your efforts, this Academy is now renowned as the biggest and best maritime college in all of America, the place to find hard working, goal oriented, well-organized men and women who are true professionals....and that is something of which you should be proud.

I have worked here at MMA since before you were born. I was Commandant or a Company Officer when some of your mothers or fathers attended. I was here for your first day at Orientation, stood with you at MOFO on many mornings and I welcomed you back "Home" at the start of every semester, but as you embark on a new beginning, it is coming to an end for me. We are both leaving the confines of this campus and watching it recede in our rear view mirror. You represent the 38th and final class that I have watched assemble for the last time and then walk across the stage to receive diplomas, licenses and certificates.

Although I graduated from a different Academy, I have always loved this place - and the people that have made it come alive - more than my own alma mater. I will surely miss you all and I will miss the life here at MMA. To my great surprise and delight, the MMA Board of Trustees has decided to make me an honorary member of your class, my final class, and I am unbelievably proud of that singular honor.

So, classmates; "Well done!"

I wish for you the proverbial "fair winds with followings seas" as you set sail for the harbors of your dreams...and I am proud to call you shipmates.

- Admiral Richard Gurnon

Class of 2015,

Not too long ago, we all had to make the difficult decision of what we wanted to do with our lives. We had to decide who we wanted to become. After much thought and debate within our minds, we all discovered the gateway to our future...Mass Maritime. At this Academy, we have all been shaped into not only professionals, but also into good honest people. The day we began our journey at the Academy, we were all lonesome individuals. And as we leave and go our separate ways, it is like saying goodbye to family. I am truly honored to have been your Regimental Commander. Never forget what this school has done for you. Never forget the friendships it has helped create. But most importantly, never forget that you were part of its incredible legacy.

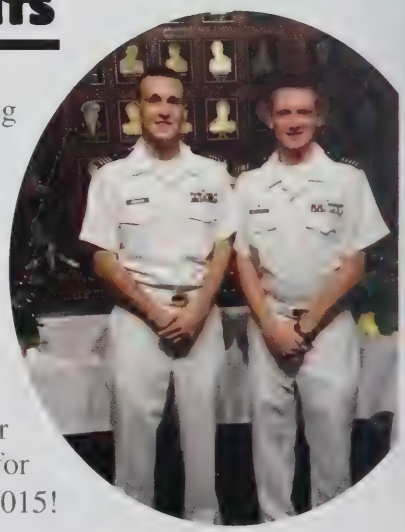
A NOTE FROM THE GRADUATING SGA PRESIDENTS



The Student Government at Massachusetts Maritime Academy is primarily a governing organization which aims at promoting social life both on and off campus and to create fond memories for its cadets. It also is an extension of the leadership component at MMA. The Academy's motto is "Discipline, Knowledge, Leadership." This year, we really tried to focus on this particular aspect. We were able to install an on-campus Snack Bar, create a Communications Committee which relayed important information to the student body and even created a popular Facebook page-all run by SGA representatives. We want to also thank my staff for their hard work, perseverance and patience. SGA members at this school truly are the most hardworking and dedicated cadets. We would like to especially thank this year's SGA advisor, Mr. Joshua Tefft for his support and influential guidance. Lastly, we would like to thank the student body for providing us the opportunity of representing them. Good luck Class of 2015!

Farewell to Coach Corradi

For 43 seasons, Robert Corradi has coached athletes at the Academy. Over the years, he has led his team to 578 victories, but he learned to roll with the changes and losses along the way. He always kept his methods the same, preaching the same three rules for his players to follow:

Be on time.
Hustle.
Respect the game.

After an incredible career, it is finally time for Coach Corradi to retire. He touched the lives of everyone who knew him. His raw emotion and passion for the game will be missed dearly.

August 2014

New students showed up on the first day not knowing what was in store for them. At the sound of the first cannon, they were escorted away from their families for an intimidating two weeks of intense training. Squad leaders motivated them through their tasks and competitions, pushing them to work together towards the common goal of winning the coveted Admiral's Cup. When the youngies marched on to the field at Orientation Graduation, they had been molded into cadet candidates of the Academy that understood the values of the school and the importance of teamwork. Ultimately, Second Company was named the victor but all walked away with a feeling of pride and accomplishment.

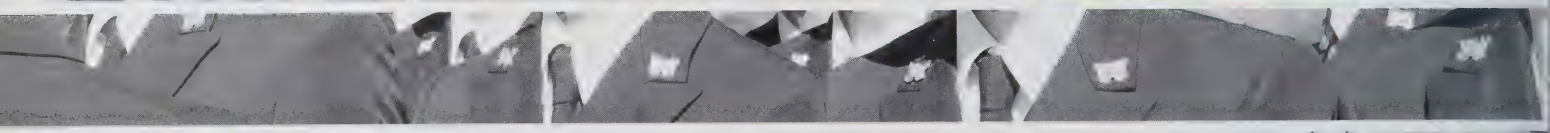
September 27, 2014

Cadets from both past and present gathered on campus to share old stories, welcome back alumni, reconnect with old shipmates, and admire all of the changes this campus has made over the past year. Homecoming 2014 was a great success, as shipmates connected at various events, such as a weekend of tailgating, formal dinners, and a grand opening to a new academic building. Alumni and cadets wait until next year for another fun-filled and action packed weekend.



October 5, 2014

The youngies had been anxiously awaiting this day since they first came to the Academy: Recognition. This is the day that cadet candidates are finally recognized by the Academy as fourth class cadets. Knowing they could not have gotten there alone, the newly recognized fourth class cadets stand proudly amongst their shipmates and receive their new recognition pins on their uniforms. This is the last of the traditional recognition ceremony; next year it will occur at orientation graduation.

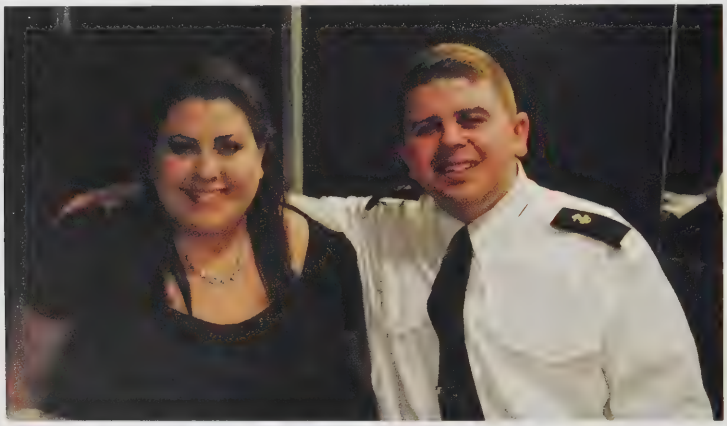
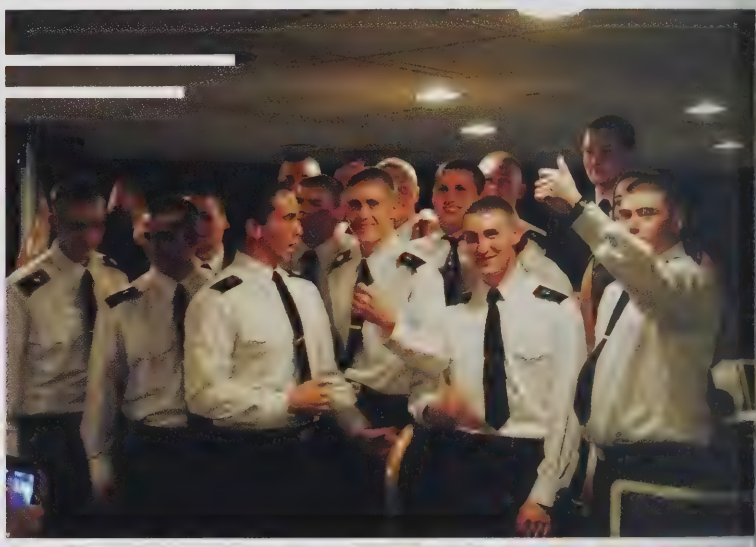
October 5, 2014

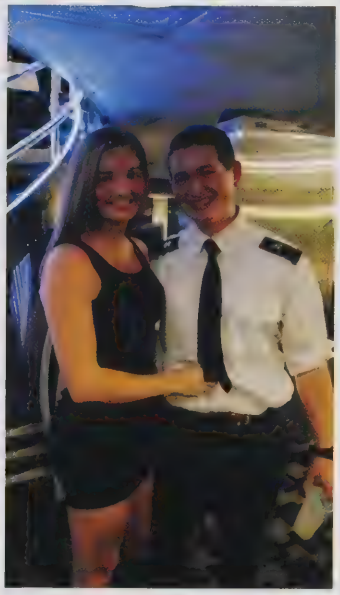
Gathered on maritime turf under the lights, the Navy SSOP program and Army ROTC program face each other in the annual game of football. With cadets in the stands cheering on their peers, the two teams matched up. In an attempt to outshine Navy, Army brought in additional support from a horse and humvee. Unfortunately, after a great game for both sides, the Army was unable to secure a victory and lost to the Navy SSOP cadets.

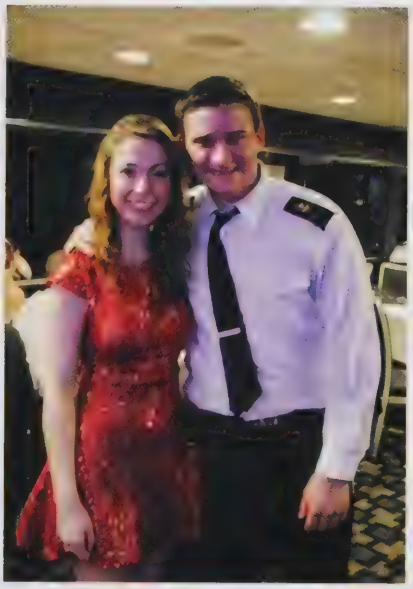


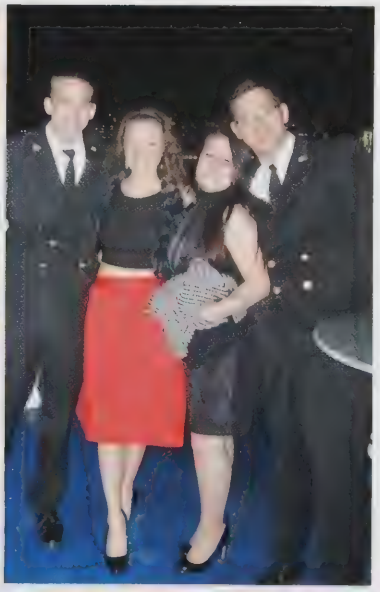


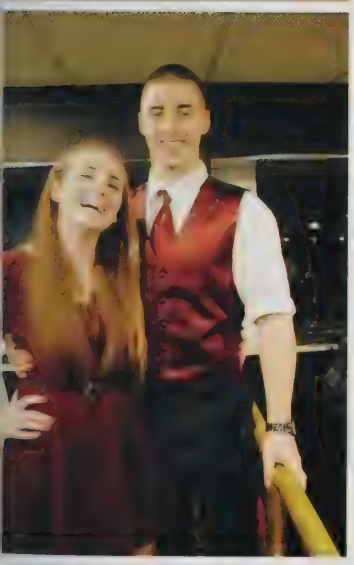
December 5, 2014

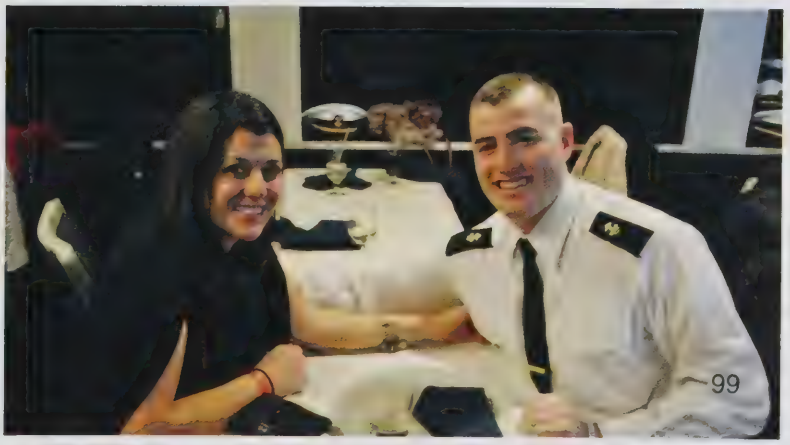
It is tradition that shortly before the Christmas break, cadets pile aboard the Spirit of Boston ship that circles Boston Harbor on a night cruise. This year cadets enjoyed a night of dancing, dining and dazzling views. Couples of all four classes filled the ship and all tickets were sold out for this amazing night.



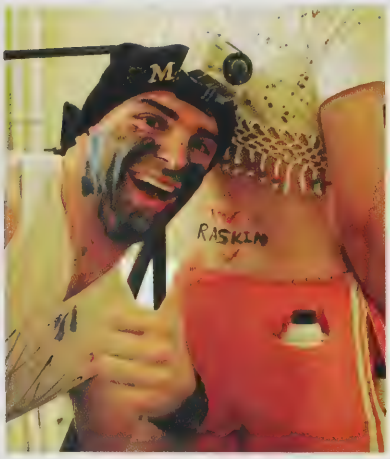


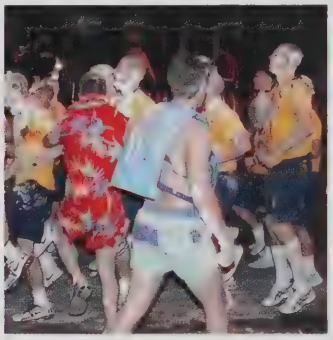






VIKING BATH





December 4, 2014

0430 starts the tradition of Viking Bath, the annual event of jumping into "the glacial boundaries of Buzzards Bay, within the frigid waters of Buttermilk Bay", as McGilvray describes it. Freshman are awaken to banging and yelling by their crazily dressed cadre. Outside in the frigid cold, the chocolate syrup and shaving cream flies, coating the freshman brave enough to join. Once it's time, they jump into the waters of Buttermilk Bay to complete this maritime tradition.

Winter 2015

On January 4th, everyone reported frozen in Buzzards Bay for a week of onload anticipating the upcoming warm weather. After a long and cold week the ship finally departed for the Caribbean on January 10th. Onboard the ship, dauntless hours of maintenance and watch made every cadet look forward to their days in port. The first half, cadets explored the beautiful ports of St. Thomas and Puerto Rico. After switching duties in Puerto Rico, a new wave of cadets experienced adventures in Puerto Rico and Fort Lauderdale, Florida. Unfortunately for the cadets on board, they had to return back to Buzzards Bay through the frozen canal but the return home to friends and family was warmly welcomed.

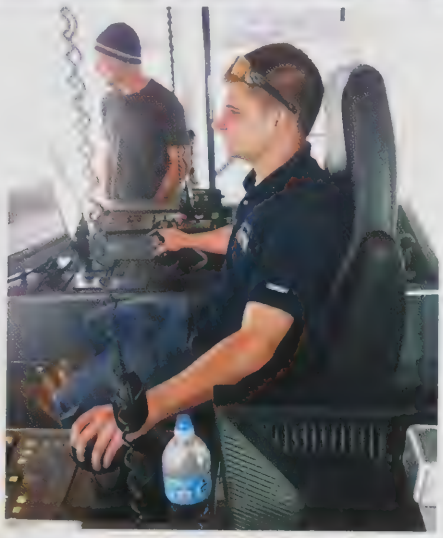
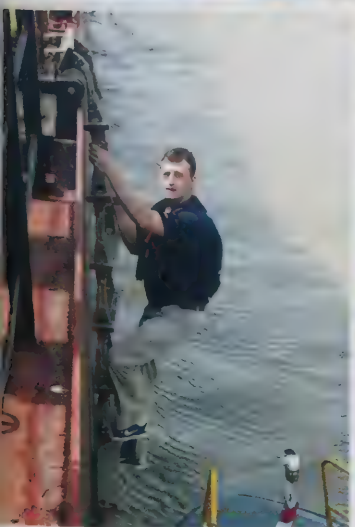
Winter 2015

Cadets from the classes of 2015, 2016, and 2017 spent their winter semester abroad in the beautiful nation of Panama, home of the Panama Canal. They got to experience the Panamanian culture while learning the Spanish language. They also got to tour the Panama Canal expansion, Presidential Palace, and the beautiful countryside of Colon.





CHINA

EXCHANGE

Spring 2015

Spring is the time in which the school experiences its cultural exchange. Students leave early before the semester to study abroad in Shanghai and Dalian. Students from both schools join us here on campus to experience the American lifestyle with the twist of being a maritime cadet. Abroad, our cadets take classes and immerse themselves in the Chinese culture in many ways, by traveling to historic sites, visiting the local downtown markets, trying new foods, and making friends from all over the world!

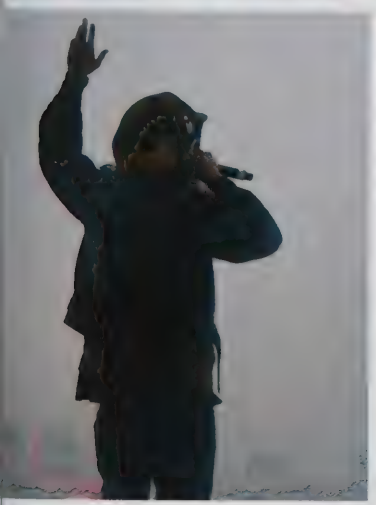
HARD RIDE DAY

May 19, 2015

This year was certainly not the same Emery Rice Day that Mass Maritime has hosted in the past few years. Captain Rozak and Commander Kelleher jumped into the bay as a part of the Senior Class Campaign, the dunk tank featured Yik Yak famous Mills, and an ice cream truck made an appearance on campus, giving out free ice cream to all cadets! Thanks to the SGA, a stage was built on the parade field and students gathered with their friends from home for a concert by Sammy Adams and CADO.



CHANGE OF

May 20, 2015

Change of Command is the yearly tradition of passing leadership positions onto the next class. Current seniors hand down their bars to the rising seniors, and rising juniors receive their Chevrons, which signify squad leader. The new leaders have been selected and are ready to uphold the many traditions and values of the Academy. As past leaders march off, the new ones come forward.

It was a night of celebration and joy, as senior cadets who had given up their positions at Change of Command the day before got a chance to unwind and have some fun with their shipmates. The venue was beautiful Wequasset Resort in Harwich, Massachusetts. Cadets wore their finest Cape Cod casual attire as they talked around the fire and danced the night away with the friends they had made over the last four years.

SENIOR AWARD

May 26, 2015

This was an unconventional morning formation to say the least. As soon as the cannons sounded, senior cadets charged off the parade field and threw themselves into the icy waters of Buzzards Bay to celebrate one of their last morning formations. Once in the water, cadets swam to the bow of the Kennedy and kissed it for good luck in this annual celebration.

COMMENCEMENT

June 20, 2015

Many familiar faces graced the patio for the 2015 Commencement such as retiring Admiral Richard Gurnon and Coach Corradi. However, some newer faces including Elizabeth Warren and Rene Rancourt also attended this traditional ceremony. Many families and friends were also in attendance to see their loved ones walk across the stage and receive their diploma.

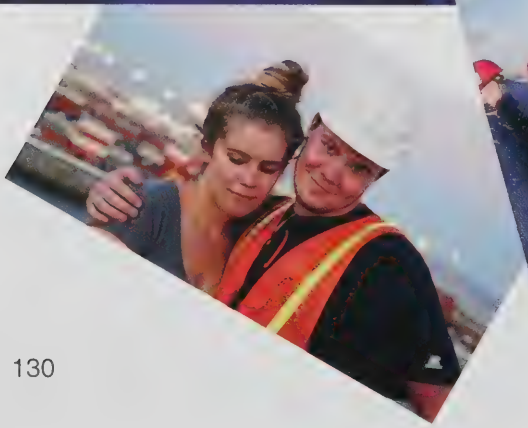
Let's take a look back on your time here...



Final Thoughts of the Day:

During Orientation, all youngies were required to fill out a piece of paper and slide it into the hallway for their squad leaders to read and see their progress. This practice was known as "thoughts of the day". We decided to ask senior cadets for their final thoughts, memories, pieces of advice or things they would miss as their time at the Academy was coming to an end. Here are some of the best submissions...

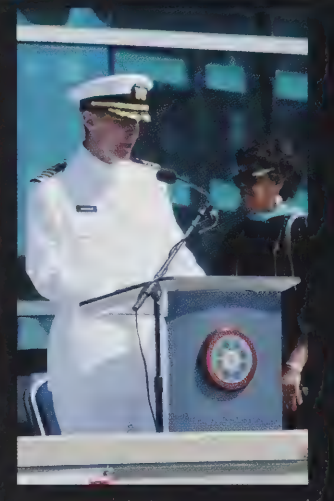
Change of Command



Over the last ten years, Admiral Richard Gurnon's ambitious vision for the Academy has increased enrollment and has brought our once outdated college into the 21st century with cutting edge campus improvements and international connections. As a result, our Academy's reputation has soared to new heights under his leadership, and our cadets are valued more highly by employers than ever before.

Now, it is time for Admiral Gurnon to give up the helm to his successor, Captain McDonald, who hopes to continue Admiral Gurnon's commitment to making Mass Maritime the biggest and best maritime academy. We have full confidence that the Academy will be steered onto a course of prosperity and growth with him at the helm for the upcoming year and years to come.

A warm welcome to the Academy's 38th President Francis McDonald and a whole-hearted thank you Admiral Richard Gurnon for your years of service to this Academy.
